

Ipe Hardwood DECKING LUMBER

A Sure Bet for Your Deck...

In Atlantic City, one thing they wouldn't gamble on was the material used to build the famous Boardwalk. That's why they used Ipe (pronounced eye-pay), the only material durable enough to withstand high-heeled pedestrians, winter storms, and moist, salty air. Ipe's unique properties make it naturally resistant to wear, rot, splintering, termites, fire, marine borers and virtually every other threat imaginable.

A Hard Act to Follow...

Ipe is indeed tough. Whereas other deck materials have a life span of 15 years, Ipe earned a top durability rating of 25 plus years in commercial applications such as Atlantic City. It's indestructibility can be attributed to it's incredible density. It weighs 69 lbs per cu. ft. compared to woods like southern pine (35 lbs) and redwood (28 lbs)! And Ipe is five times harder! No wood compares to its superior strength.
